Cabinet bust-up over anti-terror laws

BLUNKETT'S CLIMBDOWN

TONY BLAIR has ditched tough anti-terrorism measures from today's Queen's Speech after a Cabinet row about civil liberties.

A "draconian" crackdown on terror suspects – including no-jury courts and new powers to tap phones – was demanded by Home Secretary David Blunkett.

Ditched

But many of the measures have been postponed until after next year's general election following bitter disagreement among ministers.

The long-promised Corporate Manslaughter law, aimed at prosecuting bosses of accident-hit firms, is also thought to have been ditched as "unworkable". Her Majesty will outline the Government's plans for new laws over the next year at today's State Opening of Parliament.

Her speech in the House of Lords is expected to include six proposed crime and security measures from Mr Blunkett.

These include extra penalties for crooks caught with hard drugs in their bodies.

Other proposals include extra Anti-Social Behaviour rules, tough penalties for animal rights yobs and the setting-up of the Police Serious and Organised Crime Agency (SOCA). It will also kick off Mr Blunkett's controversial ID card scheme.

A bill in the Speech will begin the process of introducing ID cards for all adults in Britain.

The £3 billion scheme aims to fight terrorism, illegal immigration and organised crime.

The cards are expected to be phased in from 2007 when they will be issued to everyone renewing their passport.

Liberties

By 2015, everyone in Britain will be expected to own an ID card.

Each card is expected to cost about £35. Several ministers fear Mr Blunkett's plans "ride roughshod over Britain's ancient liberties".

Foreign Secretary Jack Straw, Trade Secretary Patricia Hewitt and several other cabinet ministers have raised concerns about Mr Blunkett's anti-terror plans.

Tory Home Secretary David Davis derided Mr Blunkett's plans as "tough-sounding, headline-grabbing statements with no substance to back them up".

Other measures expected today include a new drive against loan sharks and rip-off credit card deals.

GORDON BROWN will have to raise taxes because of the planned crackdown on cigarettes. City experts warned yesterday.

The Treasury could lose £1.8 billion a year in tax revenue when smoking is banned in most pubs and restaurants.

PRESSURE: Brian wipes away the tears

Cryin' Harvey

THE strain is starting to show on I'm a Celebrity... star Brian Harvey.

The E17 star frequently burst into tears and spent much of the first day deep in thought.

Harvey is mourning his grandmother, who died as he flew to Australia for the show last week.

The 30-year-old spent much of the first full day in the camp sitting in silence and at one point covering his tear-stained face with a handkerchief.

After sobbing in the camp, fellow celeb Huggy said: "Not as much of a laugh as you'd hoped."

Brian sniffed: "I know she wanted me to do it but it's pressure man, it's pressure. It's so hard. You get off the plane, get the phone call and then you come in here and show it to 16 million people."

Huggy said softly: "It's like a personal challenge. It's very admirable, man."

ITV bosses were celebrating last night after pulling in a massive audience for the first show.

An ITV spokesman said: "Our audience peaked at 10 million and we are obviously delighted with that."

Daily Star TV critic Mike Ward said: "Viewers were thrown straight into the emotional turmoil that Natalie Appleton was facing.

"It was typical of them to vote for her to do the Bush Tucker Trial. They have no sympathy."

THE celebs have been given two baby emus to care for and called them Ant and Dec.

Antonio Fargas joked: "We'll say, 'Ant and Dec meet Ant and Dec. We thought this might emu-se you'."

JUNGLE life is already starting to send the celebrities bonkers.

Yesterday, at 3.20pm, Sophie thought it was time for bed. She said: "The days go really quick in here."

GOBBY Janet Street-Porter claims she'll kill any nasty beasties.

She said: "I had a flat in Sydney and found a huge cockroach in my kitchen. So I dropped the bread board on it and jumped on top of it. 'I killed it. I'll do the same in here.'

PAUL Burrell has joked that Prince William could marry Beyoncé Knowles when he becomes king.

The former royal butler, 46, said: "I think the future is William, a young king with a young family. It would be nice to have a king and queen. King William and Queen Beyoncé."

A GIANT spider was found in Natalie's bed for the second night.

She squealed: "There's a huge spider under my bed. It's THAT big." Huggy Bear had to go over and remove it.

FRAN Cosgrave asked Joe Pasquale to check his bin for ticks.

He said: "You can check your own nuts but you can't see behind."

"You can use a mirror but you can't see sh*t."

Joe assured him there were "no marks, just nice little dimples".

JANET Street-Porter raged at producers after they asked the celebs to perform a dance act.

She ranted: "I never signed anything which said I would do this sort of thing."

Natalie faints in terror after high wire ordeal

TERRIFIED Natalie Appleton collapsed and had to be given oxygen after her nightmare jungle challenge.

The singer, who is scared of heights, took more than three hours to complete her Bushtucker Trial balancing on a wire 200 feet off the ground.

Viewers last night saw her win seven meals for the group in just three minutes. But what wasn't screened was the counselling show bosses gave Natalie to get her on the tightrope.

Nervous Natalie, 31, was picked by viewers because they knew she would hate the trial dubbed Canopy Calamity.

She was away from the Aussie camp site for so long that sexy Nancy Sorrell said: "Do you think she is coming back?"

Nat told hosts Ant and Dec that she knew her whingeing in the first 48 hours of the show had annoyed viewers.

Dressed in a red suit, she said: "I moaned. I would have picked me too. I would have said 'shut up'. I deserved it today."

Every star represented a meal for one of the hungry celebs. But petrified

UP AND AWAY: Brave Natalie walks slowly along the wire

Natalie, who is wed to Prodigy star Liam Howlett, shrieked: "How am I going to do this?"

Fear

"My knees have gone like jelly. Do you realise this is really serious for me? This is my ultimate fear."After more words of advice off camera, Nat slowly began the trial.She bravely managed to catch four orange stars and three red. But onceback on the platform, the tension took hold and Natalie fainted.On hand medic Bob McCarron rushed to give her oxygen and bring her round.• Bookies have suspended betting on a celebrity quitting the show after Natalie's first night nerves. William Hill's latest eviction odds are Sophie Anderton 9/4, Paul Burrell 100/30, Sheila Ferguson 9/2, Natalie 6/1, Nancy Sorrell and Janet Street-Porter 10/1, Brian Harvey 12/1, Fran Cosgrave and Antonio Fargas 20/1 and Joe Pasquale 25/1.

Jord's JUNGLE VERDICT

JORDAN is backing one of her fellow models to be crowned queen of the jungle because they've got "brains and beauty".

The 26-year-old Brighton babe thinks Sophie Anderton could come out on top but believes Nancy Sorrell is a bit of a "dark horse".

Jordan, real name Kate Price, said on TV yesterday: "It will be one of them, definitely."

Helped

Jordan's fiance Peter Andre is hoping Brian Harvey, who helped him in his pop career, will go the distance.

The 31-year-old Aussie said: "Brian is a lovely bloke. He's had a load of problems but I'm sure he'll pull through."

The engaged pair, who met during their stay in the jungle with I'm A Celebrity back in January, were tipping their winners on ITV's This Morning.

Strong

And Peter added: "Hopefully, Janet Street-Porter will get more sensitive. She's definitely strong enough to take it."

The couple reckon this batch of celebrities have already had it tougher than they did.

Jordan said she was particularly glad they hadn't had to skydive from a plane like Fran Cosgrave, Nancy Sorrell, Joe Pasquale and Paul Burrell, who almost bottlenecked out.

Jordan said: "I just couldn't have done it. Poor Paul's face!"

I FANCY NANCY

Fran goes ape for bush babe

From PETER DYKE in Australia

FLIRTY Fran Cosgrave and sexy Nancy Sorrell have sensationally been getting jiggy in the jungle.

Fran spent most of yesterday using his Irish charms to chat up Nancy, even though she's married to comic Vic Reeves.

The blonde bombshell was like a giggly schoolgirl enjoying all the attention. A show insider said: "Fran is single and said he was looking for love in the jungle. Everyone is watching what he's up to."

Sexy Nancy, 30, claimed she would be shocked if anyone tried it on with her before she flew into the Aussie rain forest.

She said: "I can't see it happening. I know Fran is single but I am a married woman."

Hunky Fran, 28, was very open about his intentions and even admitted he hadn't had sex for three months.

Cheeky

He said: "I have seen who's in the line-up and I'd give all the ladies in the show 12/10. They are a very attractive and unique group."

And it didn't take long for the cheeky Irishman to start flirting with undies model Nancy.

The nightclub chief kept calling her "baby" throughout the day and admitted the men in the camp: "She's fit."

Fran continually made suggestive and cheeky remarks.

When Nancy changed into shorts to show off her legs, he joked she might get a nasty surprise like he did when a yabbie crept up his and tried to bite his nuts.

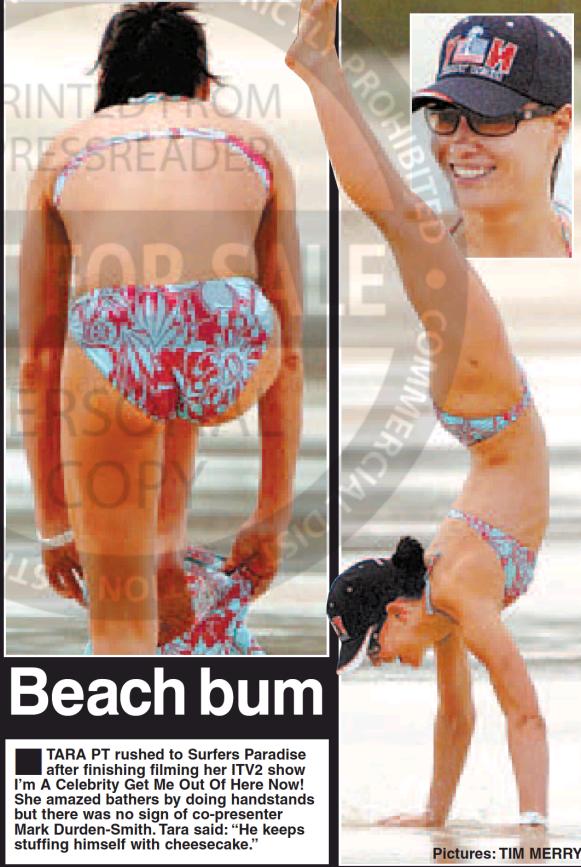

He giggled: "You look nice in those shorts Nancy. But be careful something doesn't crawl up there."

Nancy burst into fits of giggles. She appears quite taken with the Irish charmer and says she will visit his club Trap.

While the pair were flirting, Sophie Anderton and Paul Burrell were busy building a tree house as part of a task set by TV bosses.

However naughty Nancy took a keen interest in the new construction and joked that it could be used as a love shack.

JAN'S GRUMBLE IN THE JUNGLE

GOBBY Janet Street-Porter has been nicknamed the Grumble in The Jungle by the show's cameramen for her non-stop moaning.

The broadcaster, 57 – yawning, left, and in a gaudy swimsuit, right – picked on Sheila Ferguson after she was made camp leader.

She whined: "Sheila is issuing so many orders, my head is frying."

And she snapped at Brian Harvey when he farted, saying: "For f's sake. Is that how you want to portray yourself?"

She even moaned when the celebs were given hot chocolate and marshmallows.

She sniped: "You know what I've got to say to that? It's crap."

A show insider said: "She hasn't stopped whingeing since she got into camp."

"If the viewers get as annoyed as the other contestants, she won't last long."

ELTON JOHN'S KING OF BLING

DIAMOND DOG: David Furnish looks on as Sir Elton's mutt Arthur sniff his gems

He's got £5m fistful of rings

FLAMBOYANT Sir Elton John put blinging rappers in the shade last night by flashing huge rings worth a total of £5million.

The five sparklers included at least two rare pink diamonds.

And the oversize bobby dazzlers left no-one doubting that Sir Elton is the undisputed King of Bling.

The pop superstar showed off his fistful of seven million dollars at the Ivy restaurant in London.

Elton was celebrating the 42nd birthday of his lover David Furnish at the posh eatery.

Guests at the swanky bash included the singer's pals Lulu, Ozzy Osbourne and his X Factor wife

■ by NIGEL PAULEY

Sharon. Sir Elton's spaniel Arthur – a gift from David last year – shared the front seat with his master as he was driven to the party.

Tantrum-prone Elton, 57, was on his best behaviour at the Ivy – but earlier this month it was revealed that he is making his own sit-com for US television about a badly-behaved ageing rock star.

Wicked

And now his pal Billy Connolly has revealed the singer's hidden talents – as one of the UK's best stand-up comedians.

The Scottish funnyman reckons Elton is a fantastic comedian and insists the pop legend could easily have become a top comic.

Billy, 61, told Radio Times: "He's the best-kept secret in the entire comedy world."

"He's hysterically funny – so quick and wicked and clever."

"Whenever we're together, it's not me who's making people laugh but him. I can barely get a word in."

"He floors me and everyone. I've seen people crying with laughter."

"He is a fantastic comedy character actor too."

"He has two characters that I love – an upper-class English couple, Lord and Lady Choc-Ice."

"Most of the time it's Lady Choc-Ice he'll be doing and she's just a hoot. Elton could be a comedian if he ever chose to give up the day job."

Sir Elton repays the compliment to his friend of 30 years, who is hosting BBC1's Elton John: an Ivor Novello Tribute (BBC1, Sunday, 8pm).

£1m for his rare pinkie

PINK diamonds are the world's rarest and can cost £1m for a ring the size of Sir Elton's.

One pink diamond is mined for every two million white diamonds and they are prized by the rich.

Sir Elton is the latest in a long line of celebs to sport the precious jewel.

He advised his close pal David Beckham to buy one for Posh after the Rebecca Loos revelations. Becks duly splashed out £1m on a 10-carat pink diamond ring with matching earrings.

AMELIE: COPS SWOOP ON BOUNCER

A CLUB bouncer was being held last night by police hunting the killer of student Amelie Delagrange.

The 36-year-old – branded a “creep” by neighbours – is also being quizzed over an attempted murder and robbery two years ago of another woman near the spot where Amelie died.

Levi Bellfield was held at his home in west London yesterday morning.

Pretty blonde Amelie, 22, was bludgeoned to death in a frenzied hammer attack as she crossed Twickenham Green, in south-west London.

■ by MAZ PARTASIDES

She was returning home on her own after a night out at nearby Cristalz wine bar last August.

The French woman's brutal murder was the fifth hammer assault in a two-mile radius in just 19 months.

Linked

Police have linked the attacks – including the shocking murder of 19-year-old gap year student Marsha McDonnell last year – and fear a maniac serial killer is targeting blondes in the area.

And it emerged yesterday that dozens of nervous blonde women in the area have been asking hairdressers to dye their hair dark to try to avoid becoming the maniac's next victim.

Detectives yesterday also appealed for help tracing a white Ford Courier van, registration P610 XCN, which they believe is key to their investigations.

Scotland Yard's Detective Chief Superintendent Andy Murphy urged anyone who has seen the van to contact their local police station.

Forensic teams spent the day searching for more clues to Amelie's murder.

They took three sacks of items from the suspect's semi-detached house. The man – the fifth to be arrested in connection with Amelie's murder – was still being held at a west London police station late last night.

Neighbours describe him as a loner who is difficult to be friends with.

One mum-of-two who lives nearby said he was well known as a creep.

Detailed

Three men previously arrested in connection with Amelie's murder are due to answer police bail next month.

A fourth has been detained under the Mental Health Act.

The man held yesterday was not arrested for the murder of Marsha McDonnell.

Bra-vo for sexy Kylie

■ POP babe Kylie Minogue opted for a revealing fashion style on live telly. And she risked dropping a boob-boob when she appeared on Today with Des and Mel with her black bra showing.

■ Kylie's frock seemed like a normal backless, halter-neck. But it was slashed to the base of her spine, giving ITV1 viewers a real eyeful.

■ The petite singer, who's going to provide the voice of Florence in the new movie version of The Magic Roundabout, admitted on the show that she has a bit of a temper.

■ But Kylie, 36, claimed she never shouts or throws things.

She said: "I don't rant and rave, I generally go very quiet. Which is awful.

■ "I didn't realise this until one of my girlfriends said, 'Darling, you go really quiet, the thunderclouds roll over and, trust me, everyone knows you're angry!'"

Kylie also revealed she is happiest slobbing around in a "daggy" (Oz-speak for groovy) tracksuit and slippers.

OZZY TACKLES £1m RAIDERS

■ ROCK wildman Ozzy Osbourne battled with jewellery thieves who launched a £1 million raid on his home.

Ex-Black Sabbath frontman Oz grappled with one of the raiders, forcing him to flee out of a first-floor window.

The two burglars still made off with a "large amount" of gems.

But police believe the haul would have been even higher if furious Ozzy, 55, had not fought to protect his possessions.

The thieves launched their raid on the house in Chalfont St Peter, Bucks, at 4am yesterday.

They used a ladder to climb into a first-floor room and ransacked large parts of the sprawling mansion.

But they disturbed Ozzy and his wife, X Factor judge Sharon, who went to investigate. Police last night confirmed "a man" had grappled with one of the robbers.

■ by TOM SAVAGE

Ozzy is not believed to have been injured.

They said the raider jumped out of a first-floor window and fell 30ft after being challenged.

They said he was very likely to have been hurt as he escaped.

Valuables

Det Con Gill Fox, of Thames Valley Police, said: "The burglars will have been driving a large vehicle, possibly a van."

"I am keen to hear from anyone who may have seen a vehicle leaving the Chalfont St Peter area at speed in the early hours of the morning."

The man who jumped from the window was of large build, sit-

11ins, and was wearing a ski-mask, a light-coloured jacket and trainers.

Both Sharon and Ozzy were back at the mansion last night. They were both said to be "very shocked" by the incident and were expected to hold a press conference later today.

The Osbournes' £5million mansion, Wealders House, featured in their hit reality MTV show.

It is set in 10 acres, secluded enough to make it a perfect target for thieves.

But Sharon and Ozzy have installed a high-tech security system, including CCTV and infra-red detection devices at the main gate. They also employ a team of guards.

The raid comes almost a year after Ozzy nearly died in a quad bike accident in the grounds of his sprawling estate.

With KATIE HIND, LEIGH PURVES and AMY WATTS

■ WHEN a girl's gotta go, a girl's gotta go – as Britney showed shortly after leaving a swanky Malibu eatery with husband Kevin Federline.

Brit, 22, did nothing to play down rumours she's expecting a baby with dancer Kevin, 26.

Just five minutes after leaving with a takeaway doggy bag, the blonde one was suddenly bursting for the loo.

■ And she had to drag Kevin to a fast food eatery so she could go.

An onlooker said: "Britney was fine one minute, but then as she clutched her tummy she was shouting at Kevin that she just had to use the bathroom."

■ Kevin's been spending time with his ex-girlfriend Shar Jackson and his two young children, who have had the flu.

Brit's been at mum Lynne's in Louisiana.

He said: "I am very good at working now, though I think I will have to stop for a bit because I want to spend some more time with James."

"I'm not complaining, though. I have a great job."

Colin also revealed he was devastated when his son, whose mum is model Kim Bordenave, 34, was born while he was away on location.

CAPRICE should stay well away from mikes. The 33-year-old model crashed the stage at London's Cirque club trying to sing along to Madonna's hit Holiday. But the DJ told her to go away. A partygoer said: "She'd have butchered it." Too right.

CHERYL IN LOVE SPLIT

FORM an orderly queue boys... gorgeous Girls Aloud star Cheryl Tweedy is now a free agent after splitting with her footballer boyfriend Ashley Cole.

We can reveal the 21-year-old petite brunette has called time on her relationship with the Arsenal full-back.

She told pals she didn't see it going anywhere.

A sad Cheryl showed Ash the red card last week after two months together.

"Cheryl has known Ashley for a while, but they only started to get it quite recently," said a pal of the singer.

"There isn't really any bad feeling between them. They have mutual respect for one another so it doesn't look like there will be any battles ahead."

"Cheryl and Ashley took the decision to call it a day after she suggested it wasn't really working out. He took it well bearing in mind he was smitten with her. He thinks she is absolutely beautiful but she is also a very busy girl.

"She and the band have a lot on. They are constantly working to maintain their position as the country's biggest girl band so Cheryl doesn't have an awful lot of free time."

But in true footballer style, 23-year-old Ashley hit the town at the weekend to find a replacement for Chez.

He enlisted the help of England colleague Frank Lampard at Piccadilly's posh Aura nightclub on Saturday night.

Talent

While Ashley scanned the club for talent, he also got the 26-year-old Chelsea midfielder, who left girlfriend Elen Rives at home, to check out any potential beauties for him.

Our spy revealed: "There were a lot of pretty girls in there and Ashley was loving it. He seemed very determined to find himself a lady."

"Frank then got up and had a look around, but not for himself. It was for Ashley."

But despite the pair's hard work, the only arms they left on were one another's.

Love's lost its Bloom

BRITISH screen hunk Orlando Bloom's girlfriend Kate Bosworth says their two-year romance is becoming strained because they are being hounded by photographers.

She said: "It's just not normal. It's difficult when you feel so regular, then someone's flying out of the bushes snapping pictures.

"I do understand that everybody is interested in celebrity, but you never get used to it."

Kate, 21, added: "It's very invasive. It's hard not to feel as though you are always looking over your shoulder.

"You lose the ability to be an outsider and just watch, or to do things that are normal, like go to a pub.

"Your reality becomes something different."

She also confessed she was completely starstruck when she met Hollywood actresses Halle Berry, 38, Julianne Moore, 43, and Susan Sarandon, 58.

She revealed: "I felt very small and humble. I couldn't help thinking, 'What am I doing here?'"
